- e. Provide any additional comments or information that may be pertinent to approval of the project funding request.

4a. Scope: Work to be accomplished

Remove old pneumatic actuators and valves from AHU. Replace with new valves and electronic actuators. Run wire as necessary to control new devices.

4b. Scope: Benefit Statement

Pneumatic controls date back over 30 years. The valves attached to the pneumatic actuators are just as old. The current control system converts electronic signals to various air pressures in order to stroke the actuators for system control. There are multiple points of failure in this. Conversion to electronic actuators and new valves would modernize the control system allowing for more precise, efficient control of the equipment as well as removing points of failure and aging equipment. Many of the pneumatic actuators are not even manufactured or supported anymore, so conversion to modern equipment also nets the added benefit of being able to replace failed devices in the future with new devices as opposed to stockpiled or refurbished ones of questionable shelf life themselves.
