

Careers in Music History and Timeline

History:

In 2006, VSA Tennessee began a partnership with the Tennessee Arts Commission in looking at Careers in the Arts for artists with disabilities. The result of this partnership was a 2 day conference held at Middle Tennessee State University. As a result of that conference, several issues and needs were brought to light, which led to various workshops and residencies over the past 6 years.

Although several workshops and professional development opportunities have arisen for visual artists, VSA Tennessee began to focus more of its attention on careers that are related to the music industry. In 2010, a one day workshop was held at Middle Tennessee State University in conjunction with their mass communication and recording industry program to help young people with disabilities learn more about the business aspects of becoming a professional musician. This was followed by a more specific set of workshops and studio opportunities in 2011 that partnered with the Nashville Jazz Workshop in looking at jazz as a career option. In addition to these specific workshops, numerous performance opportunities were being offered for young musicians with disabilities.

In November 2011, VSA Tennessee was contacted by its national office with an invitation to apply for funding for a transition program for high school students. The Board of Directors of VSA Tennessee discussed this opportunity and decided that the time was right to pursue a more intensive educational experience that would look at the careers that support the music industry, with the idea that it was more likely that these young people would find jobs and internships in these career fields than in becoming a “professional musician”.

Metro Schools immediately began working on Chaperones by asking teachers and transition specialists to assist at the various venues. At the same time, VSA Tennessee has a connection with Middle Tennessee State University and college students were recruited to represent VSA Tennessee. The role of these students would be to take notes of the activities and observe the interest level of the participants as well as to take photos. Therefore, every location had at least one educator associated with Metro Schools and at least one volunteer associated with VSA Tennessee to assist with the students and to monitor the activities. Metro Nashville Public Schools also came through with paying the parking fees for their chaperones and in making the name badges for all participants and all volunteers. Each of the schools decided to create a sack meal for the students to have as they traveled to each of the locations. However, each of the partner locations also decided to have some sort of food/refreshments for the kids during the evening.
