FALL 2018 NEWS

Working with Students on the Autism Spectrum

Join us for the first in a new series of annual workshops for Faculty in CLA. Jennifer Kates, Department of English, will present tips for working with students on the autism spectrum. Dr. Kates has extensive experience working to improve outcomes for students and will share strategies faculty can use in the classroom. Our Spring 2019 Enrichment event will be focused on research.

Staff Changes in CLA Advising

Lucy Langworthy moved to a part-time position in CLA in which she is working on several recruiting initiative for the College. Simultaneously, we lost an advising position due to our enrollment declines since the advisors were originally hired, and the advisors were being asked to take on additional work beyond the scope of their original duties. As a result, we restructured leadership in our advising center to account for the added complexity and the higher caseloads of our leadership team and other advisors. Dr. Brad Baumgardner serves as the manager of the advising center and Yuchun Schmidt as the assistant manager. Brad and Yuchun make an excellent addition to the CLA leadership team. As I mentioned at our Fall Faculty & Staff meeting, the advisors, working with faculty, have made a tangible difference for our students, keeping them engaged in their coursework, helping them to anticipate and mitigate financial and academic problems, and providing full-time access to staff members who care about student success, broadly defined. As a result, our advisors received the highest rating on the student satisfaction survey in Spring 2018—4.7 out of 5.0.

CLA Website Updates

The CLA website has a new look and new options for faculty & staff interaction. Visit the Faculty Information section of our site to share feedback on your interactions with our staff, provide us with updates on your professional accomplishments, nominate new members for our Friends of Liberal Arts Board, view a copy of the CLA guidelines for instructional faculty, and learn more about CLA committees. Grants information and a copy of the current strategic plan can be found on the faculty information page as well.

Peck Hall Renovations Update

Over the summer, all of the stairwell and corridor floors in Peck Hall received intensive cleaning, which included removing decades of dirt and wax through a grinding process, filling cracks in the floor, and buffing the floors to produce a low-gloss shine. While much improved, years of neglect and staining means that the floors will never look like new. The floors will not be waxed again, which should mitigate future accumulation of gunk. All lighting in the halls and stairwells was replaced, some ceiling tiles were replaced, and the stairwells were painted. In the courtyard, new lighting and a new ceiling vastly improved the look of that area. Furniture will be installed before Fall Break. All of the work completed in the summer required cooperation from faculty and staff in the building, and I am grateful for the flexibility and patience of all who had to move (twice!) and work around the construction. Because we were able to allow the work during normal business hours, we saved enough money to do additional work, including, but not limited to, painting all of the hallways and updating the way-finding in the building. We are working with the contractor to determine how to best accomplish the remaining work within the time frame his TBR contract allows.

CLA Strategic Planning Process

This year the College will undertake a process of strategic planning. Our plan from the SWOT analysis from four year ago has served us well, but now we feel that we need to identify new goals to give us direction. The exponential population increase in Middle Tennessee, as well as a changing national picture for Liberal Arts, present new opportunities for us at MTSU. For our strategic planning process in 2018-19, the goal is to involve as many people in our college as possible, including representatives from faculty, staff, students, alumni, and parents in various combinations. We will begin the process with an organizing committee in the fall. We will then use the SOAR (strengths, opportunities, aspirations, and results) method with groups of stakeholders the week of October 22nd to formulate a list of priorities for the college. These sessions will be open to all faculty and staff in the college, so please sign up for a session when you receive an invitation via email. Our college will benefit greatly from a diverse set of voices in these sessions. In November, we plan to disseminate a survey to rank the goals defined from the sessions. There will be a compilation committee that will organize the results into a strategic plan, which will be disseminated in the spring for comment. The final copy of the strategic plan will be presented at the 2019-20 CLA fall faculty meeting.

A New Interdisciplinary Initiative

CLA and the College of Basic and Applied Sciences present the first Arts and Sciences Majors Showcase. Please encourage your students to attend and explore all of the options available to combine majors and minors in the arts and sciences to create a rich academic experience that will prepare them for life after graduation.

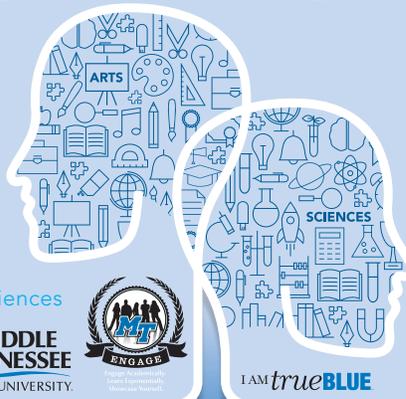

We will have tables for all majors in both colleges, sessions on internships, education abroad, and tips for double-majoring. Please join us in promoting the event and talk to your Department Chair if you are available to assist us with the event.

Share Your Expertise

Cathy Sgambati, Public Relations Specialist in Marketing and Communications, would like information about your expertise in order to connect you with media requests. If you would like to be available for interviews, please contact Cathy at cathy.Sgambati@mtsu.edu or (615) 898-5348 to make sure she has updated information for you.

Thank you...

for all you do to educate our students, facilitate the success of all students at MTSU, improve our community, and generate knowledge and creative work. You are the reason the College of Liberal Arts is successful at a time when many of our colleagues around the U.S. are struggling to maintain even a semblance of a core academic mission, particularly at regional public institutions. Your work matters for the students and for their families as well as for the future of our University. We are in the business of changing lives one student at a time. It is a privilege to be in that business with you.
